ASCM Fun Fact

Message from the Board of Directors

An AI Wrote this Article!

By: Joseph J. Duesterbeck

Let me preface this by stating that this first section is written by a human, the author. I would like to wish everyone a happy holidays and good health in this winter season. This month, I wanted to give everyone a glimpse of the possibilities and current state of AI by having an Artificial Intelligence (GPT-3) write the January letter from the Board of Directors. I gave the AI the following prompt: "Write an article that points individuals to our website (<http://www.shorelineapics.org>) by emphasizing networking and local collaboration for inventory management professionals. Include references to the benefits of ASCM membership, networking, and the use of artificial intelligence." The rest of this article is written by the AI:

Inventory management professionals should visit <http://www.shorelineapics.org> in order to network locally. Networking locally will allow for an opportunity to collaborate with other professionals in the inventory management field in a local setting. In addition, local networking is the best way to network with other professionals to learn about the issues that are affecting inventory management professionals in the current economic environment. The benefits of visiting the website and forums can vary depending on the person and what they're looking for. The website has a lot of local information and the forums can help with inventory management. ASCM membership provides a variety of benefits for members. You will be able to network with other members, get access to ASCM journals, and participate in ASCM advocacy work.

Local networking has many benefits to the inventory management professional. It allows you to connect with other people in your field for opportunities for work, ideas, and help. They can gain valuable contacts and information that can improve their skills and help with their career. It can also provide insights and ideas to help them in their day-to-day work. Local networking will be especially important to professionals who specialize in inventory management. This provides opportunities for professionals in inventory management to interact, share, and learn from each other. Topics of discussion can include best practices, new technologies, and industry trends. These discussions can help professionals in inventory management to be more efficient and effective with their work. If you don't know someone in your industry, chances are someone in your industry knows someone you know. The connections you make through networking can be immensely useful in the future.

The benefits of using artificial intelligence in decision making are that it does not take into consideration certain biases that humans do. It can make decisions based on the data available and it doesn't have human emotions. It can make decisions quicker and more efficiently than a human can.

Hope you enjoyed this insight into what can be done with AI. Be sure to come to an upcoming PDM and we can discuss this further!
